

The single buoy mooring (SBM) is situated about 2,5 km off shore at Reunion, south of Durban. About 80% of South Africa's crude oil is received through the SBM which is classified as a separate port facility to Durban Harbour. Please note that:

A security exclusion zone of a 1,6 km radius exists around the SBM at all times. No vessel, including all pleasure craft, may enter this exclusion zone.

In terms of the South African Navy Sailing Directions HO 23 for the South African coast, Volume 3, chart SAN 1029, anchoring is prohibited at all times within one mile (nautical) of the SBM, and within 500 m of the pipeline where it reaches the shore. Passage is prohibited through this area whenever a vessel is moored, is manoeuvring to moor to the buoy or when there is no vessel at the buoy. The Marine Traffic Act No. 2 of 1981, further stipulates that a security zone exists around the SBM. Also, in terms of the International Ship and Port Facility Security Code (ISPS) no vessel may enter this exclusion zone.

Nautical charts clearly define restricted areas.

CONTRAVENTION HAS SERIOUS CONSEQUENCES INCLUDING CONFISCATION OF CRAFTS, FINES AND PROSECUTION.
